Marni Sommer, DrPH, MSN, RN
Associate Professor, Columbia University

There is growing attention to the issue of menstruation around the world, ranging from efforts to address the menstruation-related barriers facing schoolgirls in low-income countries to the period equity and period poverty campaigns newly underway in high-income countries. Around the world the effort to address menstruation must address ongoing stigma and taboos around the topic, breaking the silence and engaging new partners in the effort to meet the needs of those who menstruation. This talk will explore the origins of the menstrual movement, the expanding attention to the issue, and what remains to be done.

Marni Sommer is an Associate Professor of Sociomedical Sciences at the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University.

About the Global Education Colloquium

The GEC is composed of faculty, students and community members who make global education their central focus for research and teaching, and those who incorporate global and education analysis into their areas of primary pursuit.

GEC events are held every month on the main campus of Drexel University. You are invited to bring your lunch.

Event will be webcast live through the website.
