AJ's Place on the Planet

By Gwen Ottinger

When an engineer sets out to cut greenhouse gases at an oil refinery, he finds he can't care for the environment without caring for the community next door—whether it's in his job description or not. A new play about finding your calling and making a home in a messy, polluted world.

Public Reading
Directed by Maura Krause
Tuesday, November 13
7:00 pm
Louis Bluver Theatre at the Drake (341 S Hicks St.)
Free Admission

Photo by Steven Damron, 2010