DOING THE WORK

CONFERENCE ON COMMUNITY WRITING

Together with the University of Pennsylvania, Writers Room is co-hosting the national Conference on Community Writing (CCW). Drawn to a vision of higher education that connects with communities, CCW attendees are teachers, scholars, artists, activists, and community organizers who use writing for education, personal revelation, public dialogue, and social change. CCW 2019 will take place at Drexel's main campus, the Dornsife Center for Neighborhood Partnerships, UPenn, and our partner sites on the Benjamin Franklin Parkway: the Barnes Foundation, the Free Library, and the Academy of Natural Sciences.
