

A Post COVID World:

Implications for Health and Human Rights

The COVID-19 pandemic has fundamentally changed the world. It has exposed the strengths and weaknesses of health systems, as well as uncovered the best and worst in country responses. While there has been true leadership amidst chaos, there has also been a rise of authoritarianism, scientific denialism and rampant abuses and injustices. What have we learned from COVID-19 that will shape health and human rights efforts going forward? Join the Office of Global Health and a panel of health and human rights advocates from around the world for a discussion on these critical issues.

Speakers:

Felicita Hikuam, Director, AIDS and Rights Alliance of Southern Africa (ARASA)

Rev. J.P. Mokgethi-Heath, Policy Advisor, HIV and Theology, Church of Sweden

Ed Ngoksin, Technical Adviser, the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria

Moderator: Joe Amon, Director of the Office of Global Health and Clinical Professor

Thursday, 22 April from 12:00pm – 1:00pm – Online

RSVP: <https://bit.ly/3g1RSOd> – Please RSVP by Wednesday, 21 April

Drexel Dornsife School of Public Health, Nesbitt Hall, 3215 Market St., Philadelphia, PA, 19104

