In recognition of National Preparedness Month, Drexel University cordially invites you to join us for the following webinar:

COVID-19 Prevention in Health Care and in the Community:

Conversation with Frontline Practitioners

Thursday, September 30th
12:00 – 1:00 PM ET

Register Today:
Online.Drexel.Edu/EPM

Description:

Join us for a discussion with two frontline practitioners who will share their perspectives on the pandemic and control measures for COVID-19 in community and health care settings, and highlight lessons learned for professionals in the fields of preparedness and infection prevention and control.

Moderator:

Esther Chernak MD, MPH
Associate Clinical Professor, Drexel University Dornsife School of Public Health
Director, Center for Public Health Readiness and Communication

Featured Speakers:

Jessica Caum, MPH
Program Manager, Bioterrorism and Public Health Preparedness
Division of Disease Control, Philadelphia Department of Public Health

Sarah Smathers, MPH, CIC, FAPIC
System Director, Infection Prevention and Control
Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP)

Drexel UNIVERSITY