DR. NOAM TIROSH

INSTAGRAM, TIKTOK AND THE FUTURE OF DIGITAL HOLOCAUST MEMORY

Monday, February 14, 2022

4:00 – 4:45 P.M.

Hassman Family Conference Room PISB 103

To attend remotely, please RSVP by contacting Meghan Skiles:
ms5429@drexel.edu

Join us for a lecture with Noam Tirosh, PhD. Tirosh's award-winning research spans the realms of memory, media, democracy, justice and human rights.

An author and recipient of the Israel Communication Association's 2017 Outstanding Book of the Year Award, he has covered topics such as refugees and asylum seekers, Jews deported from Arab countries, the memory rights of the Palestinian minority in Israel and more.

Tirosh is a senior lecturer in the Department of Communication Studies at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev in Beersheba, Israel and is currently a visiting professor for the Humanities Institute at Penn State.

This hybrid event is free and open to the public. A 15 to 30-minute Q&A will directly follow the lecture.

This lecture is presented by the Communication, Culture and Media program within the Department of Communication and the Louis & Bessie Stein Family Fellowship of the Office of Global Engagement.

DREXEL UNIVERSITY College of Arts and Sciences Communication, Culture and Media

DREXEL UNIVERSITY Office of Global Engagement

DREXEL UNIVERSITY Department of Communication College of Arts and Sciences