

2023 Sociology Film Series

Join us to watch and discuss three films that showcase the first-hand experiences of young people living with various disabilities and chronic illnesses. These documentaries invite us to explore the inner-worlds of non-speaking autistic individuals around the globe, to consider the confusion and social isolation produced by a Chronic Fatigue Syndrome diagnosis, and to witness the long and complex road to recovery from hemorrhagic stroke. Our discussions will involve themes of gender bias in the medical industry, social stigma, and the social constructions of disability and illness.

The Reason I Jump

Wednesday, January 25, 6-8pm

Discussion moderators: Elizabeth McGhee
Hassrick and Tamara Garfield, A.J. Drexel
Autism Institute

Unrest

Wednesday, February 8, 6-8pm

Discussion moderator: Kelly Underman,
Department of Sociology

My Beautiful Broken Brain

Wednesday, February 22, 6-8pm

Discussion moderator: Kelly Joyce,
Department of Sociology

All screenings are in-person, and tentatively located in 3101 Market Street (Rm. 223).
Pizza and beverages will be served.

To RSVP for a screening, please email Rachel Koresky at rek76@drexel.edu.