Addressing Sexual Violence in Conflict

Every year, tens of thousands of women, men, and children suffer sexual violence during and after armed conflict. Physicians for Human Rights' Program on Sexual Violence in Conflict Zones forges critical partnerships that are dramatically increasing local capacity to forensically document and prosecute cases of sexual violence. This presentation will provide an overview of PHR's core strategies in addressing sexual violence in conflict zones and examples of how these strategies have come together to support access to justice for survivors of sexual violence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Myanmar, Kenya, the Central African Republic, and Iraq.

Speakers:

Payal Shah, Director, Sexual Violence in Conflict Zones, Physicians for Human Rights

Thomas McHale, Deputy Director, Sexual Violence in Conflict Zones, Physicians for Human Rights

Wednesday, April 20 from 12pm – 1pm, via Zoom

RSVP: https://bit.ly/34PKyCa

Moderated by Nina Sun, Deputy Director, Global Health and Assistant Clinical Professor

Questions? Contact nys28@drexel.edu

Presented by the Office of Global Health in partnership with Drexel University's College of Medicine and Physicians for Human Rights

Drexel Dornsife School of Public Health,
Nesbitt Hall, 3215 Market St.
Philadelphia, PA, 19104