Bringing a Global Perspective into Medical Sociology:

Medicalization, Narrative, and Global Health

The Leo G. Reeder Award is the highest honor given by the Medical Sociology Section of the American Sociological Association. In my 2022 Reeder Award address, I reflect on three key words and situate them in the context of medical sociology and social and political life more broadly from the 1970s to the present. I draw from my personal biography, connect my identity as a sociologist with feminism and activism, and conclude with five recommendations for medical sociology's future.

Presented by

Susan E. Bell

Recipient of the 2022 Leo G. Reeder Award

Wednesday, April 26

12:00-1:50pm
Lunch will be provided

PISB 112

Sponsored by the Department of Sociology

DREXEL UNIVERSITY College of Arts and Sciences