IMPLEMENTING CREATIVITY into THE WORKPLACE

Tuesday, November 17, 2020 | 7:00 P.M. ET

Presented by Larry Keiser, PhD
Assistant Clinical Professor, Drexel University's School of Education

What is the role of creativity in business and industry? And how does the business/industry get it started?

It is fairly accepted and recognized that creativity – as a component in business and the workplace – is important to challenge and inspire an organization's employees and aid people to find innovative solutions and create opportunities. Creative ideas are sometimes the difference between a company surviving or going belly up in this economy.

This virtual 45-minute session will provide the basics for business leaders to create, develop and maintain creative work environments.
