POPULATION HEALTH SPOTLIGHT

The Social Chasm that Blocks the Path to Sustainability and What Public Health Can Do About It

The US is a society riven by divisions of class and race. This fracture is so significant, it destabilizes the functioning of the whole society. It is impossible to create a "sustainable" society without fixing the social chasms and creating solidarity within the nation and with people in other nations.

Mindy Fullilove, MD, MS is a professor of Psychiatry at the Mailman Columbia School of Public Health and author of "Root Shock: How Tearing Up City Neighborhoods Hurts America and What We Can Do About It"

Wednesday, October 14th
12:15 – 1:15

Light lunch from 12–12:15
first come, first served
no food allowed in auditorium

Ruth Auditorium, Nesbitt Hall,
corner of 33rd and Market Streets

DREXEL UNIVERSITY School of Public Health